SUMMARY

She should be dead. When a ruthless killer targets her home planet, seventeen-year-old Linuka Hinloé is left alone among the ruins—grieving and desperate for answers. Determined to find the one responsible, she sets out across the stars, chasing a threat she barely understands. But the universe is far stranger than she imagined. A relentless alien prince with the power to shift through space forces himself into her mission, while a secretive statesman with abilities that defy logic may be the key to the one who destroyed her world. As their paths collide, Linuka uncovers a terrifying truth: her planet was not the target—it was only the beginning. She must uncover who—and what—she truly is... before another world crumbles.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Melissa Beaty writes Bible studies and sci-fi/fantasy stories that explore truth, faith, and the deeper questions of life. After coming to faith from atheism, she developed a passion for helping others understand Scripture in a thoughtful and accessible way.

With a background in philosophy and education, she loves guiding readers to see both the beauty and the reason behind what they believe. When she's not writing, she's teaching high school math, leading studies, and encouraging others to dig deeper into God's Word.

Melissa lives with her husband, Eric, and their son, DJ, near the small town of Crossville, Tennessee.
